I mainly read this because I ordered a new kindle and wanted to read SOMETHING on it but for the life of me couldn't decide what. So I decided on this cute little beachy read with a dog. Perfect, right?? Nah. I really didn't realize how SHORT this book was. I don't even think this thing can be called a book. Novella? Short story? Whatever. 153 pages? I can read that in my SLEEP. I like LONG books. At least 400 pages. I gave this book two stars because you really didn't get a feel for the characters. It was the definition of a whirlwind romance. I think they kissed like twice before they confessed their LOVE for each other? Before he was like MOVE IN WITH ME, HOLLY! BE MY COOK, HOLLY! Like, what? That's not how a relationship works. You two barely know each other. You guys kissed like three, four times tops. Stop being ridiculous.

Between the length and the plain unlikeliness of the situation, I just couldn't go above two stars.

Love at first sight !!!

This was a lovely, fast Holiday Season read with a HEA. Holly is offered a chance to house sit a cat in Australia. She meets Nick a Vet and they fall in love after a slight misunderstanding. He grants her, her Christmas wish and a new life. Loved it. Just right for the end of the year.

So, I Read This Book Today says

Time for another Christmas book review – and this time, it has an Aussie twist!

Holly Scott hasn't had it all that easy in life. Growing up in foster homes left her lonely, and her simple life in Missouri consists of a trail of part time jobs and a tiny shared apartment. When an older couple from Australia show up in the restaurant where she works, and the wife becomes ill, Holly helps them out, helping them find a hotel room and bringing needed items to make their stay easier.

Now, the couple, the Goldblums, have asked her to house sit for them in their home in Summer Beach, Australia. And what a nice way to spend Christmas, the beginning of the summer in Aussie land, than in a beautiful house on a cliff above the ocean?

On her first full day in Summer Beach Holly is woken by screaming laughter and wanders outside to find a kookaburra laughing in the tree outside the front door. Then, hearing a quieter sound, she finds a box of abandoned puppies at her feet.

What happens next is a lovely little Christmas romance, short and sweet, complete with the power to bring a bright smile to your face. No, this isn't great literature, it isn't meant to be. Instead, its power is in its ability to make you smile and uplift the heart. Grab it for a stocking stuffer for your favorite hopeless romantic

(even if the hopeless romantic is you!)

This is a story about a young woman who grew up without a family and was raised in foster homes. She has been alone for most of her life but now it's Christmas and she gets a chance to house sit for a wealthy family she met while helping them out in a time of need. They repay her by letting her stay in their big, luxurious home while they are abroad. They pay for her food, let her use their car etc. if she takes care of their cat. She meets a handsome veterinarian next door and falls for him and the feeling is mutual. It is a short novel and at the end you are not sure if the characters are fully developed and I was left waiting for more of the story but to do that you have to get the next in the series. It fell a little short for me, maybe because it was less than 100 pages. It was OK, but I probably won't continue the series.

really cute * but fantastical) found on FreeBooksy, this was a very enjoyable book. Great romp over an early very cold New Years in almost Chicago, it was lovely to stay home, warm, and read something so fun.

A short Christmas romance set in Australia. I think you have to accept the set-up of this romance in order to enjoy it. Holly is an American who is housesitting for an Australian couple she met when they visited America. Nick is a locum vet, but he is also from a very wealthy family and works in the family business most of the time. Really? Also, Nick just happens to live next door to the house where Holly is staying? Perhaps that was a bit convenient. Also, Holly was meant to be staying for three weeks, but the romance took place over three days and therefore seemed very rushed.

But...if you can accept the perhaps not quite believable set up of this story, you will likely enjoy this story for its likeable characters, fabulous atmosphere and a nice romance. Oh, and the animals! They play a large, entertaining role in this story, and you just have to read the scene with the spider!

One final point. As an Australian, it is a bit weird to hear every clichéd piece of Aussie slang being used in everyday language...we don't all exclaim 'crikey', contrary to popular belief, but this could be rather amusing for some readers, I suppose.

Bea Charmed says

Sweet story but the romance was much too fast to be believable; Holly has a temper, whew. She was quick to believe the worst of Nick and have a tantrum. Pretty sure the details, or lack thereof, of her moving to Australia are unrealistic and her getting the house-sitting job was utterly unrealistic. Despite all that, I liked the story.

Betty says

This was a sweet romance, albeit a bit short. I would have liked the story to have been a bit longer, however. The characters were intriguing and it would have been nice for a slightly more complicated plot in order to get to know them better.

Oh Playing Santa was exactly what I wanted in a cheesy Christmas read. I love Hallmark channel's countdown to Christmas. I love there terrible Christmas movies that are just awful, but in a really great way. Love love love them, and this book is kind of like that.

Holly goes to Australia to housesit for the holidays and meets sexy Dr. Nick when she finds some stranded puppies outside her house. They are both super attracted to each other, but they try not to do anything about it. It is a super quick suddenly they are in love and it is Christmas and everything is amazing book. It doesn't actually feel like the characters fall in love, but it has enough of that Christmas magic cheesiness that I loved it. Plus there are puppies!

Holly is a bit insecure and gets crazy at one point and Nick is just a really nice guy. How could he not be? He helps all the puppies! Can you tell I like puppies? So yeah they don't really spend a lot of time together before it is just like let's change our whole life to be together forever! Since it is Christmastime I love it. If this were just a normal book set some other time and I was reading it it would just be okay. Oh Christmas magic. Love it!

Summer Beach Vets

I am not a big fan of romance novels but did enjoy reading about Australia. The storyline was typical romance but the tidbits about Australia and the animal side storyline added a lot to the enjoyment of the book. Sweet light reading for a snowy afternoon.

Deborah says

Sunny Christmas romance.

I do love a christmas romance, the snow, the cold, the cuddling to get warm, well usually but this is slightly different, it's christmas in Australia so we have sun, sea and a barbie.

Holly has no family she was brought up in foster care but she finds herself house sitting in Australia over Christmas, her first day there and she finds a box of abandoned puppies, she rushes them to the vet and there she meets Dr Nick Forrester, part-time vet, full-time billionaire and just generally a really nice guy, and you know the rest.

This is a nice simple Christmas romance, no surprises, no drama just a feel good clean read. Overall I liked both the main characters, well I really liked Nick, Holly I'll admit grated on me at times especially early on but it's Christmas and it's a romance so just go with it, plus it's free.

Ugggg!

What a cliche of a book. I guess I should be glad it was a very quick read. And a waste of time. To think I could have been reading something worthwhile. I will check better next time.
