Cheryl says

I Love you for Miles and Miles will want you to keep reading and see where your love takes you. A fun take on linking the age old question from kids of "Do you love me?" with answers such as longer than the longest train, faster than the fastest fire truck and higher than the highest train. Perfect for little boys (and adventurous little girls) who are always on the go, yet want to know they are always loved. One that will be re-read at many bedtimes. Illustrations of a bear family always on the go are adorable and add to how much the family loves each other no matter what they are doing.

Jessica Petersen says

A really sweet and loving book to share with any transportation-loving kid! This book would be a great way to explain the concept of love -- and all the different ways it can be expressed -- to a young child.

Gina Perry says

This will be a well-worn title for parents of young children, especially those who love vehicles and machines. The lush vistas and rhythmic text transport you to all different worlds - perfect before heading off to dreamland. I particularly liked the slow reveal about our adult character in the story. Subtle, but sweet. And my daughter picked up on it before I did!

Katey Howes says

A perfect bedtime read for kids who love things that go, I Love You for Miles and Miles compares a parent & child bond to many familiar vehicles. Love soars with airplanes, stretches on for miles like a locomotive, and moves obstacles like an excavator in this brightly illustrated book. Bound to become a treasured favorite.

Chana Stiefel says

Wonderful snuggle-time book for little ones who love transportation. Alison Goldberg's lyrical text and Mike Yamada's colorful illustrations will take little readers on a journey for miles and miles with a Papa bear who tells his cub, "My love for you is longer than the longest train...wider than the biggest rig...stronger than the strongest excavator...." Readers will zoom from land to sea to air, enjoying all of the various metaphors of love with their favorite things that go!

Heather Preusser says

Sherri Duskey Rinker's GOODNIGHT, GOODNIGHT CONSTRUCTION SITE meets Julie Hedlund's MY LOVE FOR YOU IS THE SUN in this perfect ode to all things that go.

---

Edward Sullivan says

Love has no bounds.

Emma Otheguy says

A sweet lullaby book about love that goes on and on. A perfect introduction to metaphor for the pre-school set (and their bears).

Jason Gallaher says

I felt like I traveled the miles and miles of love in this book in the best way. Each spread highlights a different vehicle that people see all over the world and ties the use of that vehicle to love. From semi-trucks to airplanes, from tugboats to excavators, each page will make you say "Awwwwwww" and picture your very own train of love stretching for miles and miles.

Joy Keller says

If your child loves cars, trucks, and things that go, then this is the bedtime story for you! Goldberg's sweet text pairs perfectly with Yamada's exciting illustrations. It's a must-read for parents and little ones.

Hello, friends! Our book today is I Love You For Miles And Miles, written by Alison Goldberg and illustrated by Mike Yamada, a unique vehicle-themed ode to the love between a mother and child.

A mother bear and her cub (no gender is specified for the latter) have a bond like no other. Her love for her baby is longer than the longest train, whose cars can stretch for miles and miles. It's faster than the fastest fire truck, rushing to the rescue whenever she's needed. It's bigger than the biggest truck, and higher than the highest airplane, and steadier than the steadiest tugboat. And just like the vehicles, it's always up to the task of helping, protecting, and caring for her little one.

This was pretty darn cute. Motherly love is certainly a theme that has no shortage of picture books, but I liked the twist of using big vehicles to describe a mother's love – rather than a father's – to a child of no specific gender. Big vehicle books are often geared towards boys only, and it's nice that there's some flexibility here that allows for girls and moms to learn about vehicles while celebrating parental bonds. The illustrations are fine, highlighting the vehicles and the bears' relationship in visually energetic ways and mostly bright colors. The length is good too, and JJ liked it, so this one is Baby Bookworm approved!
