Speechless. I wish i could give more stars to this book! Its a master piece.

Personal search has always been the area of interest in East. This novel best describes the journey and human behavior. Reasons, quest, rationales, multiple personalities and encompassing fight between right and wrong to take charge/control. Love, despair and soul searching. Excellent read.

this book was suggested by a tweep 'Aqib Zulfikar' urf ruggerboi. Excellent spiritual experience. I appreciate the imagination and rational thoughts of the writer. But overly exaggerated philosophy of love (ishk e majazi) was aggravating. the best part was supernatural happenings :p the baffling and incomplete insight to Judaism left me inquisitive.

In "Abdullah part 2" the author has brought in the main theme of "Parizaad" even the main character who is ugly and of dark complexion, no woman has ever loved him and all he wants is a look of love and affection from someone who could see the beauty of the person behind the ugly face. He comes to Abdullah to pray for him. The girl of his dreams is blind, a sculptor who has made his sculpture by feeling his face with her fingers, everything as in "Parizaad".

It will be injustice to the author if I do not mention that I thoroughly enjoyed his book "Bachpan Ka December". So much so that I purchased a few copies and given to them to my friends. This book is highly recommended to everyone. A simple story superbly narrated. I will give it 5 stars.

Rameez Siddiqui says

marvelous book

---

Masoudrahim351yahoo.com says

good

---

Ammara Abid says

Fantastic four stars * * * *

He did it

he did it

yes the writer did brilliant job again.

I really like this part too.

Excellent!

As now I'm done with it so feeling relieved.

Breath Ammara Breath Ahhhhhh

Finally Peace came into my life.....

Otherwise it's really hard to read it soon alongwith work.

Rabie Ali says

It was much better than the first book (which was also extremely exciting) as all the mysteries of a spiritual journey comes to an epic end.

Urooj Zahra says

the last few chapters :')

Qurat says

Published in the Sunday Magazine, episode wise after the success of the first part, this book was hard to resist because of all the memories associated with Abdullah. However, it was not as good as the first book.

Sami Ullah says

The most ghastly chapter to me was "ham zaat" (or whatever its name was) when the rich boy suffers from dual personality disorder. And also i wan to see the heroine :')

Abidah says

Nice one

---

Muhammad Umair says

writing is not bad for both parts, but concept is weird

zain ul aabdin says

same shit goes on..i am amazed why did i bought these two books at the same time.....

well i loved the heroine part.....

plz dont even bother to read it

Zainab Mushtaq says

Well it was good but still had some flaws. The story took an intense height with gru and abdullah (Sahir) S public competition but as soon as sahir comes back from London the story gets too slow as if the writer wanted to escape from the writing of Palestine. The handicapped man whom Zehra was about to marry because she was responsible for it really took me from Urdu literature to a perfect Hindi dramatic movie . And honestly sultan baba remained alive when sahir remained like forever in deep slumber then finally he is dead. But even apart from that one thing which was most irritating to me was that goldsmith Parker aka gru gave sahir a warning that I'll meet you again and then the novel just ends ...
