Niko says

Although this book sounds like it's a joke, it's actually a really good book. It keeps you interested with moments of comedy and cliffhangers (it doesn't end in one). If you like books that will make you constantly laugh, then this is the book for you.

Melisa Herrera says

Really funny. Can you imagine being in an aliens body?

A Jones says

THIS BOOK IS NOT ON THE READING COUNTS LIST

Glenda Yaksich says

The DITS machine is supposed to transfer the intelligence of one person to another. But when Mr. Dirksen, the science teacher, accidentally pushes the red button, Jake knows that something is wrong. He feels his face; his eyes are as huge as tennis balls! What are those two pipes sticking out where his nose should be? He has a beak instead of a mouth! Ugh! That other guy must be an alien from outer space and he is running away in Jake's body! The big soccer championship is tomorrow night and Jake is the goalie. He has to get his body back before the game.

Even though the plot was so unbelievable, I found myself laughing out loud at the antics of Jake and his friends. This story was filled with juvenile wisecracks that transport the reader back to Junior High. I recommend it as a fun book to read.

Gaby says

Aliens are real and they are all grey, fat, lazy, and addicted to the television. Yikes. There's a life lesson in here somewhere. Join Jake as he ends up in an alien's body. He's never going to live this down...

Katie Oess says

Very good book. By an intelligent 10 year old

Todd Strasser really expresses the feeling in this story, for instance... Jake. He shows in full detail how Jake feels about being in an alien's body. Jake could walk without gasping for air every few steps in the alien's body and was very weak very funny.

Mia says

Fairchild says

lol! i remeber when this was the only book that we could read fluently, then it saod "SPACE JAM!" on the back, then we were laughing so hard we coldn't breathe, then the teacher yelled at us, good times, good times.....

Dolly says

This is a fun (and slightly preachy) tale in the Help! I'm Trapped... series by Todd Strasser. It's a fairly typical story in the series, with a cautionary theme about the importance of staying active and not watching too much television. We enjoyed reading this story together and we will likely look for more of these books at our local library.

Beverly says

I like these books in general so it was really good. I like how it was an alien even though they are not real!
