Surviving the Darkness Johanna Rae

When the world grows dim, and each day becomes a struggle, look within. There is a fire inside you, which burns bright enough to conquer any darkness. Let your inner light shine, and rise above all that seeks to hold you back. Even when it feels as though you are stumbling blindly, never lose faith that the path is still beneath your feet. Believe.

In this collection, Johanna Rae shares her struggles, and also reaches out to others who may be battling their own turmoil.

An excerpt from:

DAWN WILL NEVER COME

As the moon ascends
So follows my demise
Tumbling into treachery
Drawing my sanity in like a vacuum
Darkness blankets the world
Except for the ethereal lunar glow

I received this book as a "giveaway". It is a nice collection of poems and musings wrote by Johanna Rae. In these poems she shares her struggles, loneliness, turmoil, and misgivings. My favorite poem that I related most to was SOMETIMES. For me it was a poem about depression and the realization that when one is suffering within themselves they feel so alone and as if they are the only one watching the world around them function and succeed. Thanks Johanna for sharing!

I received this book from a giveaway I entered and, to be honest, was not aware at the time that it was a collection of poems about suffering and struggles. However, in keeping with the spirit of the giveaway I did read the entire book(it is pretty short) and I'm glad that I did.

I normally do not choose to read poems but found many of these quite enjoyable and thought-provoking, including "Double Sided Coin" - which I think captures the essence of many at some point in our lives as we all have regrets.

Overall, pleased to have won a giveaway that presented something new and inspired me to not "be too busy to give that smile, even to someone [I've] never met."
