

2:32AM: Losing Faith in God

Lakisha Johnson , Angel Bearfield (Illustrator)

Download now

Read Online ➔

2:32AM: Losing Faith in God

Lakisha Johnson , Angel Bearfield (Illustrator)

2:32AM: Losing Faith in God Lakisha Johnson , Angel Bearfield (Illustrator)

The bible tells you how to fight the enemy but what do you do when it feels like it is God you're up against?

Charlotte's nightmare began at 2:32AM, the morning she experienced the most unimaginable pain ever, the loss of a child.

Now, she finds herself angry at God. She trusted Him and He took her only child. She prayed to Him and it seems as if He has turned His back on her. And if things could not get worse, hell keeps showing up at her door.

What can she do, when she continually cries in the darkness but gets no answer? Where can she turn when it feels like her back is against the wall and there is no way out? Who can she depend on if God let her down?

Questions Charlotte ponder when the memories snatch her from her sleep at 2:32AM. Questions that make her angry because to her, God has forsaken them.

2:32AM: Losing Faith in God Details

Date : Published April 19th 2018 by Twins Write 2

ISBN :

Author : Lakisha Johnson , Angel Bearfield (Illustrator)

Format : Kindle Edition 365 pages

Genre : Christian Fiction

 Download 2:32AM: Losing Faith in God ...pdf

 Read Online 2:32AM: Losing Faith in God ...pdf

Download and Read Free Online 2:32AM: Losing Faith in God Lakisha Johnson , Angel Bearfield (Illustrator)

From Reader Review 2:32AM: Losing Faith in God for online ebook

Pat Smith says

Running from God

When you're trying to live according to God's word and diligently seeking his face, attending Church regularly, worshipping and praising and meet with tragic circumstances, what do you do? You try to understand and praise Him anyway but sometimes you hurt so much that you find yourself angry with Him. You try to survive this thing alone. But eventually, you have to go running back to Him because it's the only way to survive. I was deeply moved by the prayers in this book and found myself studying the scriptures used as if this were a devotional. I read passages to my husband. I loved this book. Even if you haven't lost a child, you can relate to the pain and reactions Charlotte experienced by the trials she went through. Excellent read.

Kimberly Berry-White says

Emotional

This book was/is awesome. I want to thank Ms. Johnson for ministering to my soul. This book takes you through all emotions. I was happy, sad, angry, and grateful. You told a story/delivered a message in such a way that anyone could relate. She gives scripture references for guidance. If you have ever lost someone you loved and questioned, why me, why my family, how can I get through this. This is a must read. Even if you didn't this is a must read you can use it to bless someone.

Sandsuhray Hawkins says

I had never read a book , that made me cry from start to finish. My faith in god has been always been strong, but reading this book Mae it stronger. I have never been so touched by what some women goes through with the lost of a baby, the emotional toll is so much plus the pain to go with it . I prey for every and anyone who goes through this , stay preyed up and keep the faith.

Alisa M. Giddens says

Mrs. G.

2:32 is and excellent written book. It will hold your interest from the beginning through the end. I truly enjoyed this book that keeps life situations real, and how it hard sometimes to keep the faith... But God. I thank God for His Mercy and Grace. Thank you Lakisha Johnson

Joyce Dickerson says

This was a tear jerker because dwell with two issues the lost of a child and also an unfaithful husband , Charlotte went through so much dealing with Keith and Dakota and at times when she lost her faith in God for letting her go through these things, I would of given this book a full five stars but it has quite a few errors, I have read several books by this author so maybe her editor was not on point with this book sometime book content is so much and can be so in tense it takes you off guard.

Valerie says

SOOOO Freaking Emotional. I cried real, hard, ugly tears with this book. I can't even explain how emotional I was. Just know, I had a true soul cleansing. I cried for these characters as if I knew them and as if I was living their story.

I love when a book captures your heart and mind...then holds onto it way past the last word of the book....

Dawn Slaughter saysTears

This book pulled in every emotion i have as I too lost my husband and both parents in less than 1 yr and a half. So much happened so fast so I can relate to the character in this book , Even had similar crazy other women issues. This book made me cry throughout reading it. But a book that can do that says a lot for the author. May God continue to bless you Lakisha Johnson. Your books are such blessings!!

Tonia saysWow!!!!

I have read many books. This by far surpasses many. I have not lost a child nor a husband but I have suffered great loss and pain. This book has inspired me to hold on and know Job 42 shall manifest in my life. I am in awe at the power of God that I felt even as I read from these pages. Thank you for your obedience in writing this book.

Ellowyn says

This book is definitely a must read. The author has penned a great story line, page turner and she connects you with the characters instantly. You will experience the emotions that the characters are feeling. I wanted to hurt Dakota. Some friend she turned out to be.

I haven't read many books that make me cry but this one really got me. Great job Lakisha Johnson. I look forward to reading more of your books.

Michelle Wright says

This book is everything

I want sure about reading this story due to all the loss I have experienced lately. I'm not going to lie. Charlotte and Keith's journey broke me down. I think God chose me to read this when it was time. I began to stumble and question everything and lose myself as well as not faith trying to be strong for everyone else. Reading this story let me release the pain in my soul through many emotions and tears. The title is perfect. I hate what Charlotte had to endure but we have to know God doesn't promise no storms but that he will carry us through if we just trust him. Thank you for this story LaKisha. I love all if your books but this one will always have a special place in my heart. Thank you for letting God use you to minister in this way. Please read this book. You will not be disappointed.

jennifer Cook says

Wish I could give this book more than 5 stars

This book is for anyone going thru a storm, anyone that is has been hurt, lost, or just feel like giving up. God has a purpose for all the tests and trials that you are going thru, you just have to have faith in Him! Lakisha I love all your books but this is my top favorite! Great job!!!!

Emquegee says

So it took me a minute to gather my thoughts on this book. This is the 3rd book I've read by this author and I keep wanting more. I can't say that I was a fan of the "Christian fiction" genre before reading these books but I am quickly growing to like them. This book is about a woman's faith being tested through various forms of loss. The loss of a child(ren). The loss of friendship. The loss of her husband. And the loss of her faith. What struck a cord for me is that I've been in this woman's shoes. Without giving away the story I'll just say this book is almost identical to my relationship with my husband about 4 & a half years ago. The only thing I would fix about this book is the few types but even that wouldn't make me give it any less than 5 stars. This book is so good, yet heartbreakingly at the same time. It's about holding steady in your faith and overcoming the storm. Troubles don't last always.

Joticia says

Touching!

This book pulled at the strings of my heart. Being a mother whom has also suffered the loss of a child and asked God why so many times. Ultimately it was Faith and trust in the love of Jesus Christ that carries me through. This novel is just that...a piece of work that brilliantly shows the harsh reality of suffering and death but then the love of our Lord and how he keeps us and throughout it all never leaves us! Amen!

Dee Cherry says

This story touched my soul. The writing in this book was so real, it seemed as if I knew Charlotte personally. From the 1st page & throughout the story, her pain, sorrow & grief were definitely felt. Dynamic storyline filled with a message that needed to be heard. There were a few times my eyes teared up for Charlotte truly went thru it. Title on point with content & also showed God's goodness. Well written & highly recommended

Cassandra Haywood says

When You Grieve

I have read several books by this author and they were very good reads. I must say this storyline hit home for me the most. The grief I feel comes from a relationship, one that has ended not in an actual death but one where we can no longer stay together. The only other difference is between me and the character Charlotte is that I didn't give up on God or blame him for all the troubles, hurt and pain I was going through. It just made me seek God more, especially when I realized I was in a relationship with a wolf in sheep clothing and the enemy was using him to push me off the deep end of darkness.

I love how the author shows how God never gives up on us when we call ourselves walking away and being mad at God.

I highly recommend this book to read, I feel it would help you understand when we go through bad times in our life it is not the end, but our beginning to draw closer to God and his Word and have patience waiting on God's timing for our joy to come.

Cassandra H.
