Imagine you are in the 1970's, without a cellphone or iPad, living in a Virginia town that is an odd mixture of old and new. You run an Arabian horse farm, which you hope will become successful, yet there's a small secret in your past which could ruin your dream. You were unknowingly used in an experiment, which then led to your husband's murder, making you the prime suspect. You only have one good friend, but soon find yourself involved with others after a seemingly innocent game of poker. As events unfold, you become suspicious of the men around you, unsure who to trust, while friends become entangled in a web of deception, government agents, and are forced to face their own emotional rivalry.
