Jenna says

Poor Esther. Ingrid became very all-or-nothing, but I suppose that's been part of her character from the start.

---

Cinnamon Spark says

Another stellar issue.

Alexandria Gryder says

Ugh, love these girls.

Elizabeth (Miss Eliza) says

Where do I get a Jeff Goldblum shower curtain? Also Daisy has an internal Susan! And everyone is moving out!

John Allison. You sir, are a genius. I've been reading this comic series for....just shy of two years now. It's one of my all-time fave series. It's probably the one series I go to when I'm feeling really down or when I need some laughs. This series, for me at least, is like a what reading on a rainy day feels like. Like getting a warm hug from a close friend. Like that first sip of fresh coffee on a Sunday morning. Or the first sip of cold water after being in the hot sun.

I love going back to revisit these characters every once and a while for a sort of comfort. BUT they don't come fast enough nor are the issues long enough! I end up reading them too fast since I'm too excited to read them!

This issue was no different. Loved it but it didn't last very long. I'm sure I'll end up going back to the beginning and re-reading all of them again.

If you haven't tried this series yet, I highly recommend it. I love it because the series focuses on the main characters friendships and less on romances. Plus I love the humour. I see myself in each of the characters, too. Which is fantastic since I feel a connection to each of their lives and am more invested in the series. Curse you, John Allison! You've made me a Giant Days junkie! You monster! Lol. Seriously, though. Go read them.

Sj ni še konc serije ane da ni, tok so dobre no !!!

Sierra the Nerdgirl says

Aw dang shit's getting real.

Briana says

"What a profound message from the subconscious. File it under 'nebulous portents'."

So the gang is breaking up.

I don't feel quite as heartbroken as I should since majority of the time in these recent issues the conflict only last an issue or two then gets resolved.
