27-year-old Jane Cooper is your quintessential girl Friday: presentable but no beauty queen, smart but not a genius, reliable but never a go-getter. Everyone thinks they know what to expect from her...except they don't.

For one thing, Jane can't say no to dares. Which is why when her friends dare Jane to make out with a stranger---

She does it.

And when said beautiful stranger dares her to marry him---

It's a cute love story. I was lost a little with how the dialogue was written. It was really hard to follow and I had to reread some of the pages a couple of times to see who was talking. I think I would have liked a little more story to really draw me in. But overall, it was short and sweet.

Perdani Budiarti says

Dare is her middle name, so Jane accepted right away after her friends dared her to make out to a stranger. And when then the not so stranger dare her to marry him, the story began...

Idenya menurutku berisiko banget, harus make out dngan orang asing. Mungkin hal ini lumrah ya untuk kehidupan orang barat, tapi saat make out si Jane ini ngasih tahu namanya ke pria yg dia ajak make out sementara si pria tetap merahasiakan namanya? *tepok jidat Setelah akhirnya kenal dan tahu nama si pria, Christian *like Mr. Grey. Ini memang jadi bahan guyonan si penulisnya sendiri di novella ini ^^*, Jane lagi2 make out-lah dngan si not so stranger anymore ini. Dilanjutkan dengan lamaran Christian yang tidak langsung dijawab Jane. Alasan melamarnya agak aneh sih, dan not so make sense. Christian mau ada orang selain dirinya yang bisa memberi citra bagus untuk perusahaannya. Katanya tidak cukup dengan merekrut PR saja, dia butuh orang yang dipercaya dan dia yakin orang itu haruslah istrinya.

Tidak lama muncul tokoh CEO di perusahaan Jane, Jared yang bersahabat dengan Christian dan terlihat ikut tertarik dengan Jane. Hello, kemana saja selama ini Pak CEO? Setelah itu ya dilanjutkan adegan make outnya Jane dan Christian di berbagai kesempatan sampai akhirnya terjadilah make love beneran setelah mereka bertunangan. Jadi kenapa make love-nya baru saja, ya karena Jane ngaku kalo masi V dan katanya Christian mau nunggu sampai mereka nikah *lah tapi baru tunangan kok sudah... *terdengar semakin mirip Mr. Grey & Anna *cmiiw

Nah, konflik yang memanaskan hubungan Christian-Jane ternyata bukan Jared yang ikut2an mengejar Jane, tapi kebodohan Christian sendiri yang menjadikan Jane sebagai kambing hitam dihack-nya game online yang dikembangkan perusahaan Christian. Alasannya aneh banget sih, hanya karena Jane berada di tempat yang sama saat Christian dan Jared membicarakan rencana back up data game tersebut. Well, hello...what's wrong with you, Chris?!

Ketika Jane bisa menyelamatkan nama baik perusahaan Christian dengan mengembalikan kembali fungsi bagian PR, gantian pria ini yang mengejar balik Jane #sigh

Happy ending tentu saja disajikan cerita ini, namun konflik dan cara eksekusinya itu yang menurutku kurnag pas. Yang membuat heran nih, kemana perginya dua sahabat Jane di sepanjang cerita ketika dia mulai menjalin hubungan dengan Christian? Tahu2 mereka ada saat Jane sudah bermasalah dengan tunangannya tersebut. Something's not right and missing here. Tantangannya juga nggak ada imbalannya sepertinya *lupa

Actually 2,5*/5, tapi di GR aq pasang 2 bukan 3 karena klise konfliknya yang terkait kepercayaan antar karakter itu, dan nama panggilan Christian ke Jane is a big no no, aneeeh

This book is just perfect to read in between your busy schedule--like when you commute, on lunch time, or when your head was just about to explode with the workload. The Marriage Dare was short, sweet, and easy.

This book was about a girl name Jane. Her whole life she always think that she was plain, the perfect plain Jane. She also always trying not to stand-out, just to blend in and blur into the background. But, she never say NO to a dare. That's how she end-up making out with a stranger--a perfect stranger nonetheless.

And this stranger, this perfect perfect British stranger then dared Jane to marry him. Their connection was strong, the chemistry was abundant, and the more they got to know each other, the more crazy they were with one another.

But nothing was that easy and perfect, right?

Jane was just perfect. She's cute and funny and refreshing, i like her alot. And Christian was just HOT. But i still think the conflict was too over the top, and didn't feel real. But in the end, it's good though.

Sweet novella. I must admit I like Marian Tee's longer works better when there is more time for character and story development. Despite that a very enjoyable read!

I just love how he was such a jerk and hurt her to later realize he made a huge mistake and crawl to forgiveness!!! I just love it when they beg!!!

When I'm in the mood for heartbreaking angst, Marian Tee never disappoints, and this book was no exception. Jane and Christian's meeting had the makings of a light-hearted love story, as feelings get involved, their ability to hurt each other becomes evident. My heart was pounding for these two characters to find their HEA, and I loved every moment!!!

This is a total must read book. The sex scenes were amazing and the story line great. I wished the book was longer. I want to read Jared's story.

Great story. Loved it

I don't know what the hell I just read. Halfway through, I was lost. I DON'T UNDERSTAND THIS BOOK. Dull as hell. Heroine is an anglophile and pixie dream girl with a childish sense of humour. The whole British accent being so sexy is way overdone. And WTF is up with calling her "Pet"?! It's weird and creepy!

This book was just okay for me. It felt a little disjointed and I was sometimes confused and thinking that I skipped a page somewhere. Christian meets Jane when she approaches him on a dare from her two best friends. He shows up again a couple of weeks later and proposes that they get married. There is some angst toward the end, but again it felt rushed, or maybe I needed more from the characters. This is a kindle world book and I have not read any of the other Dare to Love books. I really like other books I have read by Marian Tee, this one just wasn't for me.

I rather like this book. But one thing that irk me the most is the author ignorant behavior of simply putting Islam name in the way she found fitting-terrorist. This whole stereotyping religions should have not been brought up in the first place. She just threw it in the book for the sake of suspense or drama or whatever the hell of it. I'm sick of people insulting others religions. Every religion is of love non of 'em preacing about hate. We -people, are the one who stray away from its teachings.

I quite liked this one! Although there were parts which I did not understand at all, and the reason why he needed a wife was really lame. With a good P.R team he could have avoided that.

The fact that he was named Christian and how she laughed, making connections with the famous Christian Grey was fun at first, but then it got really old and annoying. Alright, so the guy is named Christian. Awesome, really awesome and sophisticated name. Just...stop with Fifty Shades. This book is not about it.

Moving on. Jared. Apparently the closest friend of Christian and Jane's boss's boss's boss's boss. And...he bloody hits on her. In front of Christian, when he is not around. He makes not just one move on her. Alright, I get it. Jared also likes her, because Jena is really likeable. BUT, come on...Christian is his friend. And the fact that he lets her alone with him, he does not say shit to him to make him stop, and then when Jared clearly is about to kiss Jena, she tells Christian "he did nothing to disrespect me". No shit, girl...he disrespected both Christian and you since the very first second. It was beyond me why Christian kept calling him a friend.

Jena is your normal shy, cute, and hard working girl who is not aware of her qualities. Christian is...I don't know. He was really cool. A bit of a stiff, but cool. However, he was a dick near the end. How he put the blame on Jena for his hacking, and how he told Jared "if you like her so fucking much, then she's yours", how he is aware he loves her but just refuses to admit and his choice of hurting her instead...the guy even blocked her number. What an asshole.

And Jena's lack of self respect...she nearly begged him to get back together when there was not her fault AT ALL. She ignores all the shit he told her (and trust me, he really is mean) and goes to save his ass as the head of his P.R team (as I said, with a good P.R team, he could have saved himself the wife trouble). I'm glad that after she realized he blocked her, she came to her senses and left him for good.

Christian realized quickly he was an ass and begged, literally, for forgiveness. His way of letting her know how much he is hurting was...sweet. I wish she let him boil more. He fucking deserved it. I also wanted him to crawl on his knees because of that phrase he told Jared.

An epilogue would have been nice, it ended really abruptly. I would want to read more about them! :-)
