A deeply humane writing with intense emotional connect about a real personality. The narrative takes you on journey across the forest of the western ghats and the real issues there to the animals and the environment, which is indeed the spirit and life of doctor K. This is one of the rare moments that JeMo shines not by the acrobatics he normally does with his words to dazzle the reader, but earnestly as a humble admirer to the personality of the doctor. This collection of writing by JeMo based on real life personalities also establishes why JeMo is great in short stories more than complete fiction. This also is the reason that i still like Jeyamohan's writing indoor of his right wing lineage.... Hats off.

Amazing!

JeMo is a wordsmith! Whatey wonderful short story this is! It urges me to read his full stack "Kaadu" novel. A doctor's story - feels so real with JeMo's writing. A fine short tour of forest and a glimpse of elephant and wild life. Sprinkle some philosophy and some hard hitting truth, we have yaanai doctor.
