While I liked the plot of this novel, I did have a problem with the relationship between the two main characters. They barely knew each other before starting a sexual relationship!!! Then the ending was rather abrupt. I kept reading to see who the murderer was and thought Mrs. Daniels did a good job of giving the reader little nibbles of clues to make that revelation appear plausible. I would have liked to have seen more friendship between the two main characters.

This has to be one of the stranger books I have encountered. It just ended, there was no wrap up, story lines were left hanging, it was just odd. The story itself was good, but there was no closure. I read series all the time, but they typically wrap up the current story line. The main characters weren't really wrapped up and the side story was left completely hanging. Looking at the author's books, there is also no clear order to read these in that may explain more of this. I have looked at the books by the author on the goodreads site and there is nothing that definitively says which book to read next.

This was a good read - mystery and intrigue up to the climax at the end. I enjoyed it.

Classified Christmas is an interesting story. Andi Blake is being pushed into doing a story on Cade Jacksons late wife. And she is very pushy. But Cade cannot seem to resist her especially after she is attacked. They dont know who is stalking her but Cade is doing what he can to rescue her.

Jill says

Just a bit better than average. I guessed the villain and the book does end on a sort of cliff hanger. Starting in the middle of a series always requires some catching upl

Mnms says

I really didn't like this book, it doesn't feel like the story was finished.
Its more investigation than romance, and the romance isn't credible.

Janet Randon says

An ok read.

M. says

I enjoyed this book and look forward to reading more in the series.

Lynne - The Book Squirrel says

Not a bad story but not sure what the dysfunctional family that was mentioned was all about, I was waiting for something to happen to connect them to the main story but nothing materialised.
