Lieutenant Commander Paul Lathem has served his country proudly for eleven years as a navy Seal. He has risked life and limb to preserve freedom and has loved every minute of it, but having entered his thirties, he realizes he's looking for more. He wants the wife and the kids and the life he sees his older brother Matt enjoying. And he is sure he wants it with Nic, but she isn't convinced. Born and raised in Norfolk, Virginia, Nic Stewart has had a difficult childhood, with scars burned deep in her heart. Recently fired from her job as a kindergarten teacher, Nic increases her employment search radius and ends up in Manhattan, just blocks from the Lathems...and Paul. Will Paul be able to soften Nic's heart and rescue her from the demons of her childhood? Can he convince her she deserves a love story?

Jane says

Paul the Navy SEAL in the story is The First Class Hero and like men and women in our military and their supporting families, we all need to be aware of the service they give. Paul the fictional SEAL is a nice man that is ready to leave the SEAL's and settle down. He meets Nichole 'Nic' on a cruise and looks her up on his next leave and they rest of the story is how he wins his reluctant bride. First Class Hero is a romance about a military hero and I recommend it to anyone interested in this type of story.

So this book started a little slow. If you give it a chance it picks up and is just as good as the rest of the First Class books! I loved Paul in First Class Voyage so I was very happy that I did not have to wait for his story! By chapter 3 I was hooked and had a hard time putting it down. By the end of the book it had made me cry once, almost twice! It ended just the way I like happy but not an over the top unrealistic everything worked out to be perfect. While my favorite First Class book is still the first one, I have never been sorry I bought one!

I love this book. From the first line to the last, it had me hooked. Something new is always happening and the family is fantastic. No spoilers and I'm going to post the same review for all 9 books. This is the umpteenth time I have read them. I give them another read when I want to be completely immersed in the Lathem family and come out feeling great. Wonderful romances. Read them all!

Anna Marie says

I... wasn't sure what to expect. But mediocre is what I got. It's a book that wants to be Suzanne Brockmann, but falls hopelessly short. It's about an average girl and a guy you're told is an amazing SEAL, but... it's not there. The secondary characters are undeveloped, the story flows meanders like a river, not really giving more than a 'nice' ride. It was nothing special. In case you were wondering.

Nic (I hate the name) wants to be a kindergarten teacher. She ends up moving whole states to find a job - and it's insanely competitive, and... in the meantime she meets a SEAL on a cruise ship, he falls for her and whaddya know, she lives by his friend until she gets her job states away, and too-coincidentally, she gets a job within walking distance of his family (with his mother on the board as her liaison in her move). It was too pat, too banal. Skip it.

I enjoyed this very sweet and uplifting albeit a little predictable story. Very well written and quite original how the author expresses the passing of time. I felt a bit voyeuristic but it was fun to kind of watch down from above the story. I found myself yelling at the screen in places. Very fun read!

Lieutenant Commander Paul Lathem has served his country proudly for eleven years as a Navy Seal. But as he sees his close knit family marry, have children he begins to take stock in his future. He looks forward to the same happiness his brothers have. And has to make a decision whether a soldiers life blends well with Family life, he doesn't think so.

Nic Stewart from Norfolk, Virginia, Devoted Kindergarten teacher, who was just laid off, is having a rough year, or maybe a rough life. Her childhood wasn't filled with the normal loving parents, and her past issues come into play once again.

This series continues featuring all 7 Brothers all handsome and all have a special quality, Paul is not exception, sexy commanding. He meets Nic, but the instant chemistry he wanted wasn't returned, so being the gentleman he is, he slowly romanced her to show her how much he wanted her.

Sexy, and continually entertaining. You will love how the series bring back all the characters from the books you read before, and added bonus. I loved it, and look forward to the next book.

I would highly recommend the series but by the collection, because you'll be back for more!

This was a good easy read. I really liked the characters.

Tangy says

A little TOO sweet for me, but it was well written with very likeable characters.

Lynn says

I liked this book, the characters, and the story line. It was a predictable story, which is exactly what I wanted. And although it was predictable (don't hold that against the book or the author), I found it realistic at the same time. Both the main characters, especially Nic, were very likable. The protagonist and another that was less than likable added to the realness. I recommend this as a good read.

Book Junky Girls says

Paul left the cruise trying to decide if his time in the military was done and surprisingly it a woman who blew him off on the trip that's making him consider a future, with her! Nic didn't mean to be rude to the Navy guy, but she'd grown up with her mother saying they were the worst kind of man. Now she's make home in Virginia at her crappy waitressing job waisting her degree when he call her out of the blue, can she really turn down a man who went through so much trouble? But right as they begin to get to know each other he's recalled to active duty and it's through email that they get their chance to learn about the other. While he's gone Nic is finally getting some interviews to teach again, but if she gets them it'll mean a big move, sometimes though fate has a way of figuring things out for you and when Paul comes back all the pieces come together. But with the baggage of her childhood will she ever be able to really let Paul in?

I loved seeing Paul's story, his struggles and decisions many military personal have and seeing how he decides what's right for him. He's done allot for his country and now he has to decide what he's gonna do next. Nicole was closed off at first, but seeing her blossom and come to truely enjoy her life was quite the joureny to follow. Loved seeing these two and how things came together for them.

This is Paul Lathem's story. He has been a with the Navy Seals for eleven years. Now Lieutenant Commander Paul Lathem want his life to go in another direction. At thirty, looking at three of his brothers happily married some with new babies, he wants what they have, a wife and kids of his own. And he is sure he wants it with Nic, but she isn't convinced. Born and raised in Norfolk, Virginia, Nic Stewart has had a difficult childhood, with scars burned deep in her heart. Recently fired from her job as a kindergarten teacher, Nic increases her employment search radius and ends up in Manhattan, just blocks from the Lathems...and Paul.

Really liked this continuing saga of the Lathem family. Love how we can catch up with the lives of characters we fell in love with in previous novels. Sensual rate for me is a 4.

Number 5 in the First Class series and is not a standalone. I have read each book in this series till now. Each one has been a 5 star rating. This one is my absolute favorite. Giving it 5 stars just isn't enough. I fell truly madly in love with Paul and Nic. I wasn't prepared for such an instant emotional connection and attachment to both. Superb writing and development of the characters within in the story. I loved the way both Paul and Nic were such strong people. What really got me, was how each one had a total different life experience to make this way. The childhoods, families, career choices, relationships, etc.. were so different. The passion and acceptance in Paul helping to balance out Nic's strong determined skiddish personality traits. Excellent job of creating realistic desirable lead characters. Oh, and can't forget also get to see some familiar faces and catch up with them. It is wonderful watching these two start their own magnificent love story. Very good writing and format for such a great storyline. I also enjoyed the dialogue and humor that helped make this read so smooth and entertaining. You can't go wrong with settings that include the military and educational realms. Positive and supportive reference to subject matter that might be considered more difficult to discuss. Not a smooth emotional read- but I loved it for that. I felt every emotion. I can not stress how valuable and meaningful this read is. IT IS A MUST HAVE TO ALL LIBRARIES. AndreaAH (gc)
